SIX DECADES OF ENDURING DESIGN

Robert Welch, appointed Royal Designer to Industry, was one of Britain's leading industrial designers of the 20th Century. After training at the Royal College of Art in London, he specialised in stainless steel production design, establishing a company in his own name in 1955. From the outset the Robert Welch mission was to combine a search for innovation with a sincere respect for the traditions of the past. Quality, ease of use and fine design in harmony.

Although the studio designs for manufacture in many forms and materials, Robert Welch Designs is best known for its unique ranges of stainless steel cutlery. The key factors being excellent design, balance, weight, function and durability. Robert Welch Designs continues under the careful guidance of his family, Rupert Welch Managing Director and Alice Welch Deputy Managing Director.

The talented team of designers now continue the studio's design into the 21st Century. In the true tradition of Robert Welch, they are ever mindful to ensure the continuity of the style, innovation and commitment to excellence on which the company was founded.
